The tick is not always on the dog or cat

Tick...Tick...Tick or, what to do when there's a tick on you.

Ticks are wingless, parasitic insects that feed on animals and humans. Some ticks carry Lyme disease; named after Lyme, Connecticut where it was first identified. They are mostly found when humidity is high.

Preliminary symptoms of Lyme disease include a spreading rash followed by flu-like fever and aches. These symptons may persist or appear and disappear intermittently over a period of several weeks.

If you find (or feel) a tick on you, remove it promptly. Use tweezers or forceps instead of fingers. If the tick is crushed with the fingers, exposure to its body fluids could lead to transmission of Lyme disease or other illnesses.

Contrary to popular belief, when removing a tick do not twist or jerk the tick. Rather, gently pull it straight out firmly and steadily. Grasp the tick's mouthparts as close to the skin as possible.

Four points for prevention when in tick land are: 1. Keep clothing tucked (shirts into pants, pants into boots) and wear light colored clothes. 2. Use an insect repellant which is labeled for use against ticks. 3. Check yourself often. 4. Avoid brush and grassy areas, stick to the trail.

According to one park ranger, if the tick has not been on you for 24 hours and your tetanus shot is current, you should be all right. But, if you find a tick on you and have any of the symptoms, call your doctor. The doctor will administer a blood test to check for Lyme disease which is easily treated with a prescription of antibiotics to cure the infection and prevent complications associated with later stages of the disease.

Republican Women send students to Sacramento

The Carmel Republican Women Federated plans a special treat for high school students of the Monterey Peninsula during the coming session of the California State Legislature. They will enjoy the privilege of an escorted bus trip for a day to Sacramento to attend sessions of the State Senate and Assembly.

Invitations are in the mail for "Bucks for the Bus", a cocktail buffet fund raiser, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Dennis LeVett at their Pebble Beach home Wednseday ., October 4, 1995 at 6 p.m. Honored guests will be three Peninsula residents prominent in the political scene: Jess Brown, Republican candidate for the U.S. Congress, Jeff Davi, candidate for Monterey County Supervisor, and Bruce McPherson, who represents the 27th district in the State Assembly. The aim of the Republican Women's Advocacy Workshop is to teach interested students how our government operates.

Polly Kenaston and Rickie Titherington are co-chairmen of the evening. A prize drawing will be featured and there will be valet parking.

Anyone interested in attending the event or who would like to join the Carmel Republican Women Federated may call 625-6123.

DA backs off on Mapstead charges

On August 22, 1995, the Monterey County Registrar of Voters referred to the District Attorney's office a citizen's complaint concerning the candidacy of Mr. Noel Mapstead for the elected office of Director, Division 5, Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

Specifically, the complaint alleged that Mr. Mapstead's declaration concerning his current residence in Carmel was false and that he knew it to be false. This is the second citizen's complaint received by the D. A.'s office.

The investigation into the allegation has proceeded rapidly because the Registrar must prepare election materials for print deadlines.

Mr. Mapstead, in discussing this matter with the district attorney's investigator maintained that at all times he has intended to remain a permanent resident of Carmel. To support his position is the fact that his driver's license and mailing address list Carmel as his residence and he has been a registered voter in Carmel for many years.

Based on the above facts, the District Attorney's office cannot prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, that at the time Mr. Mapstead filed his Declaration of Candidacy, that he knowingly made a false statement.

EDITORIAL

A new legal challenge to Proposition 140 has been mounted in federal court by a 20 year incumbent state legislator, and an assortment of his past and current supporters. The basic facts are set forth in Pacific Legal Foundation's "Action Report".

Alliance of California Taxpayers and Involved Voters (ACTIV), as an organization, and founder, Lee A. Phelps, as an individual, have joined with two of Proposition 140's proponents in asking the Pacific Legal Foundation to intervene in the Bates v. Jones case. The named defendant in Assemblyman Tom Bates' lawsuit is Secretary of State Bill Jones, who is, himself, a former legislator as well as current holder of a term-limited elective office. While having every confidence Secretary of State Jones will vigorously defend Proposition 140 against this newest legal challenge to its constitutionality, it has been the Pacific Legal Foundation whose attorneys have defended the measure since it was enacted by voters in November, 1990. In doing so, they have compiled an impressive record of success, and also have accumulated a large amount of experience and body of legal precedents and citations not available to the Secretary of State.

Acting on behalf of co-proponents Pete Schabarum, a former Los Angeles County supervisor, and Lewis K. Uhler, Jr., founder and president of the National Tax Limitation Committee, based in Sacramento, as well as ACTIV and Phelps, PLF attorneys are asking the U.S. District Court for the Northern District, State of California: (1) To grant Schabarum, Uhler, Phelps, NTLC and ACTIV, the status of intervenors in behalf of the defendant Secretary of State and the historic initiative itself; and further, (2) To dismiss Bates' lawsuit on numerous grounds, among which is the fact that each of the issues raised by Bates and his co-plaintiffs already has been decided in favor of Proposition 140 by the California Supreme Court, and by refusing to entertain an appeal of that decision the U.S. Supreme Court has implicitly held that no federal constitutional issue was, or by extension is now, involved.

"This lawsuit is simply one more glaring example of the arrogant belief, held by career politicians, that they somehow are endowed with a divine right to govern," Phelps said. "Voters in California rejected that notion by enacting Proposition 140, to begin with. This ill advised lawsuit confirms their wisdom."

A PLACE IN THE SUN
Virginia Parke

Vacation time closed with a flurry of events that included horses, hoofed and wheeled, cattle herded through town, a dog show, a concert in the park and a picnic at Rosies' Cracker Barrel.

Strictly Country performed a free Sunday concert at the Community Center park. Many residents spread their blankets on the cool green lawn, listening to the music while munching on the barbecued fare prepared by Dave Lyon, Darryl Tyler and Nick Craft.

Band members Don Oliver, John Keller, Bud Benedon, Willie Bryant and Joe Meckes responded to audience requests with lively home town banter.

The Sherrill family, Susan, Nina, Cloe, Scott and Jessica joined the Millers. Daniell, Shane and Jennifer shared a blanket, enjoying the music and perfect summer weather together.

The picnic at Rosies' was the "Up The Creek" Carmel Valley Flood Relief (CVFR) Wrap Up party. Stew and Sandy Clough with Dorothy McEwen created a festive country gathering for over 100 survivors, volunteers and friends complete with blue and white checked covered tables decorated with fresh flowers. Everyone brought a special dish (the pecan brownies were heavenly) and chicken was expertly barbecued by Jim Fitch, Wayne Lennart and Jerry Martinez.

The Homefire Band, Jim Hitton, Mike Osgood, Pat Mahoney, Steve Palazzo and Bill Ruddoch played bluegrass country favorites. Kathleen Tarp evoked laughter and tears with three tunes she wrote depicting some of the scary and heroic events of last winter's floods.

The survivors honored Dorothy and Stew with special pins designed and created by Robin Mahoney. Stew and Sandy received special pictures drawn by survivor children in appreciation for their support and caring. Kristin Crane and Jenna Mahoney wrote and recited poem of acclimation and gratitude to Stew and Dorothy.

The longest resident survivor on Los Helechos, John Urlin, cut a bright red ribbon officially opening the new Los Helechos road built by Terry Bishop and his crew. Joining in the fun were survivors Fran Farina, Don and Lory Swiess, Louise Bishop, Kim and Jamie Cole.

Camp Steffani survivor Jim Needam, along with other survivors, loaded up their vehicle with the plants from Drought Resistant Nursery and received their gift certificates for supplies provided by Tom Gladney at Murphy's Lumber purchased with CVFR funds.

The Sun sponsored "Up The Creek" benefit started a project that has been carried on throughout this year by the Carmel Valley Flood Relief grant committee. Their dedicated and selfless work inspires, for me, hope that our species can learn how to co-operate, compromise and confront with respect. Thank you Dorothy McEwen, Allan Marcus, Stew Clough and Steve Wolff for your time and commitment to your community.

To the survivors and volunteers I wish to express my gratitude for the experience of witnessing your courage and willingness to help your neighbors.

Hail and Farewell ... It's been a great season here in Carmel Valley. The sun has shone brightly - for the most part - and our T-ballers, Single A, Double A, and Major League teams have been the truly shining stars. Not to be outdone, our Pony League boys brought great glory on themselves - just ask Ed Canadas, Bob Allen, and Dan O'Sullivan what caliber 14 year old team will take the field next year! But now there is a bit of crispness to the morning air, the yellow school buses at Tularcitos carry our girls and boys to one grade higher than last year, and the memories of the 1995 CVLL season are magnetized, slightly yellow, to many a refrigerator door.

First, let's raise hail .... to all the managers, coaches, assistant coaches, team moms, team dads, and Barney Bassett, Official CVLL Mascot, we give our heartiest congratulations. To our CVLL Board members, especially our Hail to the Chief President Mike Thatcher, we award a lifetime pass to the skybox bleachers at Benny Field. To Cindy Thatcher and her crew of snack bar volunteers, a bottle of liquid detergent and the latest edition of Stain Removal Made Easy, by the authors of See Spot Run. To Jon Siegel, our Player Agent, the latest Bud Selig Thicque-skul Hard Hat to replace his delightful leather chapeau. To Pam Priano, who Kept Track of Everything, a brand new superturbo full race double hetrodyne twin cam field tractor. To Gary Pennington, coach extraordinnaire and Leonardo of the landscape, a Michigan Militia Compleat Home Defense Bazooka Kit (simple tools required for assembly) for 1996 gopher control. To Jim Shakal, who has seen many of his dreams come true, an entire year's worth of more good dreams. To Deborah Warcken, outstanding amanuensis, six reams of computer paper and the use of Barney Bassett to lick all the envelopes she sends out. To Wendy Thomas and Gabriella Buich, our money-mad mavens, an invitation to appear with Louis Ruykeyser and a free tour of the San Francisco Mint. To bearded Jim ("I've got a kid at every team level") Saxton, a set of moose antlers to hang all his hats on. To our legal eagle, Glen Nolte, some lucky draft picks and a large jar of Tiger Balm.

But the real thanks ... Yes, the real thanks for a great 1995 Little League season in Carmel Valley go to the parents and the young people who got out there and put their skills on the line. The parents' willingness to take risks combined for some really great moments of baseball this year.

We interrupt this column ... How about a news flash from the CVLL Boardroom! The Board met on August 15 with the following results, none of which will probably have high impact on the course of Western Civilization as we know it. The annual meeting for the election of board members will take place on September 21 at 7:30 in the CVLL Boardroom. You need not be present to be elected President. The fields and grounds need maintenance; watch for announcements of times and dates for work. Thanks to the Conrads, (yeah, the guy with the sunflower seeds) we will be purchasing a golf cart from Quail Lodge. Can it outrun Pam's tractor?

OK, pumpkins, time for coaches ... Forms for manger / coach applications will be going out around October 15 so that they may be returned by December 1. No experience necessary (can't you tell?) And who would like to fill the shoes of Just Call Me T-ball Jim Saxton? We seek a new T-ball director.

As we move ahead ... Let's hope for more column space for the softball teams, who did a really outstanding job this year. Let's hope that some Pony games may be played on our Shakal Field so that the parents need not recreate Scott's expedition to the South Pole. Let's hope that the superb level of sportsmanship shown by the teams, coaches, and fans this year may continues as a special quality which makes the CVLL renowned Finally, let's hope that just as the big guys move on up to Pony, the rookies move to the top of the order in the majors, the minors hone their skills and aspire upward, and the T-ballers will continue to march to whatever drummer they wish, the turn of the seasons here in our particular paradise will bring each parent and each child one step closer to that perfect game.

We didn't forget ... the Dawsons and the Vandervorts were up for more column space. But folks, there were just too many of you for this season ...

Thanks for a great year.

VALLEY VOICE

Fran Farina

The calendar says summer will last through September 22nd. For me, it always ends Labor Day weekend.

Growing up in Syracuse, host to the New York State Fair, school always opened the day after Labor Day. That was to encourage families to attend and participate in the fair without missing school.

While I always enjoyed the animal and plant exhibits, I probably spent more time on the midway playing games and eating food. My favorite foods were cotton candy and candied apples. I tried to win those large stuffed animals, but never succeeded. The fair was entertaining as well as educational. Maybe that explains why I still go, merely substituting our county fair instead. I eat fried artichokes -- that's my idea of falling off the food wagon, but I no longer try the games and long ago gave up on the rides.

I've already noticed several changes which tell me that summer is really over.

I have more leaves to sweep off the deck.

The thermometer has registered 40 degrees on several mornings.

There's less fog.

It's dark when I wake up.

I still haven't figured out where the summer went. When I look at my calendar, it shows lots and lots of water related meetings and appointments. But, how could eight weeks evaporate in what seems like a matter of days?

The expression "time flies" never meant a thing to me when I was young. I would sit in class and watch the clock tick off each minute wondering if the day would ever end. We had those wall clocks which moved backward before moving forward to mark the next minute. Time passed so slowly then.

In contrast, I now feel like my life is a time warp. What seems like the passage of seconds is actually minutes and weeks seem like only a day or two. Is life so much more interesting now than when we were children?

The end of August is generally a time I look forward to (even though it means that summer is almost over). The Historic Auto Races at Laguna Seca, Concours at Pebble Beach and now the Concours Italiana at Quail provide auto lovers with plenty to do.

Carmel Valley offers many quality family events. The Del Monte dog show at Carmel Middle School is excellent and Ranchers Days at the Trail and Saddle Club is wonderful.

Now it's time for the heat of September and October. Will this be one of those years with 100 degree days? I hope not. They suck all the energy out of you and consume mega-quantities of water.

Why, before you know it, the kids will be knocking on the door in their Halloween costumes, we'll be buying our Thanksgiving turkeys, watching the Christmas tree lighting at Mid Valley, and very soon, it'll be summer again.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

Newt Gingrich, probably our least liked, but most intelligent presidential candidate, suggested execution as a deterrent to big time drug smuggling. So, I wrote to him. Told him I'd probably vote for him, if he'd also suggest execution for murderers, as a deterrent.

We have roughly 25,000 murders per year in the U.S., and we have about three dozen executions per year. Gingrich could go to the head of the line, as a Life Saver, if he could shove legislation through that could raise that execution rate from three dozen to maybe 23,000.

We hear of foreign countries, where "life is cheap". Seems to me, that it's kind of cheap here, when we can't bring ourselves to getting serious about 2,000 murders per month.

Meanwhile, remember the "body counts" during our Viet Nam war? Well, our White House, (with Senator Feinstein's encouragement - got a letter about it from her, yesterday), finally got "something going", in a horribly confused place called Bosnia. Sure, I can understand the advantage of having a little war going on during an election campaign, (mustn't change horses in the middle of the stream, etc.), but, really now, we just can't afford another Viet Nam, and nobody, anywhere, can afford to have this little adventure blossom into WW3.

Anyway, during Viet Nam, as long as the enemy's body counts were greater than our friendly body counts, then we knew (here, in the U.S.) that everything was OK. In Bosnia, as in Viet Nam, the totals won't matter.

Personally I think our war-inviting foreign policies need some very serious rethinking. We have more than enough unsolvable problems without going across oceans to look for more of them.

LETTERS to the Editor

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

There is an old rule that if there is one thing wrong with a ballot proposition, vote against it. Add up what's wrong with the New Los Padres Dam!

* Do the voters trust the bureaucracy, (water district) to administer a 30 year program? Read the ballot measure and get acquainted with the open-ended proposition which allows the district to build a dam even if the voters turn it down. The measure also allows the district to assess any amount of fees to cover the costs of this $300,000,000 boondogle, and to enter into some kind of a public/private partnership, JUST TO KEEP THIS $6 MILLION BUREAUCRACY IN EXISTENCE.

* Will the voters approve a measure which allows free water to the owners along the river at other water users expense?

* Do the voters want to subsidize fish, developers, and newcomers at a cost to present residents of over $90,000 per acre foot when Cal-Am can deliver water to us at one-fifth the cost?

* The water available for new growth will permit construction of 14,000 new homes for newcomers with a potential of 28,000 more cars clogging up our streets and impacting the cities infrastructure, including overtaxing our sewer system.

* The district fails to tell us that if the voters approve the dam, Cal-Am will have to improve their filtration plant, water mains, etc. at a cost of over $12 million. Who will pay for that? Guess?

* If Cal-Am builds the dam, the taxpayers will not have to buy its present dam and property surrounding the dam at a cost of many millions of dollars.

* The myth that it is better to have the District supervise Cal-Am than the Public Utilities Commission is a political ploy to encourage voters to approve the proposition. We don't have to pay the PUC to supervise Cal-Am, we have to support the District at over $6 million per year, with no end in sight.

* The payments will be nearly $10,000,000 per year. The District tells us that we will have to pay only 87 cents per unit of water consumed. If the voters believe that, get ready for a surprise. If there is a shortfall in the collection of fees, the District is empowered to raise them.

There are many less expensive alternatives to this unnecessary dam. In my next column, I will list them, then the voters can judge for themselves whether to support the dam or opt to let the Cal-Am Water Company provide water as it is required to by state law. Private enterprise is better equipped to do any job than any government.

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Do you want to pay more for poorer ambulance service?

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors will vote Sept. 5 to award a countywide ambulance contract to one of three bidders. The bid considered to be the front runner at this time is not the low bid nor the one that will provide the best level of ambulance service to residents of Carmel Valley.

It the bid is accepted, there will no longer be permanent ambulances located in Carmel Valley. This will result in significantly longer ambulance response times than Carmel Valley residents now experience.

Furthermore, the cost of this service will increase. If the likely bid is selected, it is estimated that Monterey County residents will pay an additional $5.3 million over the initial five year term of the contract. And this does not include annual rate increases allowed for in the contract.

In effect, the new contract will provide Carmel Valley residents with poorer ambulance response times than they enjoyed 15 years ago when emergency ambulance services were provided at no cost to the patient!

As your representatives, we are deeply concerned about a possible deterioration in the quality and cost efficiency of Carmel and Carmel Valley emergency ambulance services. In our opinion, the contract being considered does not reflect the improved level of emergency medical care Carmel and Carmel Valley residents desired when they voted for paramedic services through the passage of Measure A in 1988.

If you are equally concerned about this issue, please express your views immediately to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors. The Board members serving Carmel and Carmel Valley are Sam Karas (647-7755) and Judy Pennycook (647-7722).

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

VALLEY FINANCE

Douglas Pease

When it comes to space technology, my dear wife is a rocket scientist. Closets and suitcases are her specialty. Her approach is to push any envelope to its ultimate limit, testing how much it will hold beyond what it was designed to hold. Our house is a series of carefully stuffed closets connected by rooms. She bought training wheels for the suitcases.

My wife and I look at closets and suitcases in completely different ways. For me, these are containers which should make their items readily accessible when needed. For my wife, these are containers which hold the stuff. This has been a great lesson to me.

In financial planning, closet and suitcase philosophies are critical. Take credit cards, for example. I would like to see clients use credit cards as a readily accessible replacement for cash, but some clients have found out that credit cards have no limit if you use them enough.

Then there's the subject of budgeting. Clients from one school of philosophy use budgeting to assign certain amounts of income to savings for the future. Clients from the other school use budgeting to be sure they haven't spent more than their take home pay.

I am pleased to report that both philosophies produce happy, creative people. I use a backpack and look at the scenery when we travel, while my wife compares notes with other passengers on her quest for the ultimate suitcase. When I see something being put away in a closet I kiss it goodbye, knowing secretly all I have to do is ask my wife where to find it if I ever want it again.

#1 In a Series on How To Be Secure In Insecure Times

YOU CAN GET HOME FINANCING!

by Rand Smith

If the home of your dreams has been priced within reach during this temporary real estate slowdown, you may also be in luck when it comes to home financing.

Problems in the savings & loan industry have lead to stricter lending policies, that is true. The bright side is that, because interest rates are lower than they have been in some time, more people can now qualify to borrow money for a home purchase. Your total income now may be high enough to put you into the preferred borrower bracket on the home you want.

If you have job stability, excellent credit, savings in the bank, and low credit card debts and car payments, you'll have no problems at the bank. That's always been true.

We've seen too many potential buyers disqualify themselves before they talked to the bank. That's why I want to urge you . . . if you are thinking about buying a home, let us help you find out what your current borrowing power really is.

Perhaps you need additional financial help because you're new on the job, have minimal savings, or a late payment or two on your credit history. Lender financing is a method we use very successfully in such cases. We aggressively seek lender financing for our buyers who need and want that type of arrangement.

That's good for both buyer and seller. It helps you move into the home you want, and it helps the seller make a deal in a slow market.

NOW'S THE TIME TO MAKE YOUR MOVE

No Hassles.
No Obligation
